Clematis prefer full sun, but need to have their roots shaded. Achieve this by planting a low growing perennial at the base of the plant. It is always best to mulch with compost or organic mulch rather than rock. Keep your Clematis well watered, do not allow it to dry out. Clematis have specific pruning types, listed above.

Type 1-Flowers come on old wood. Require little to no pruning. If they need to be controlled, prune after first flower flush is done.

Type 2- All first flowering comes from the previous seasons growth. In spring when you see buds begin to swell, cut off all dead material above live buds.

Type 3- These bloom on all new growth. Prune back to 12-18" in early spring before growth appears. Cut above live growth.
